

R.L. Stine's 'Fear Street' Books Are Being Developed for Multiple Movies

Collider by Haleigh Foutch, 2017-07-13

20th Century Fox is doing something genuinely interesting with their adaptation of R.L. Stine's beloved teen horror Fear Street books. The studio has recruited Honeymoon director Leigh Janiak to re-write and direct Fear Street, but in a compelling shake-up of the standard distribution model, Fox has set a deal that calls for her to write three different scripts that could be not only shot back-to-back but also released back-to-back theatrically, each film hitting theaters one month apart. The news comes from THR, who sources tell that Fox is looking to create a "...
